

Regularity, blow up, and small scale creation in fluids

Alexander Kiselev

I will describe a recent sharp result on the rate of creation of small scales in the solutions of the 2D Euler equation. I will also indicate connection with well known open questions in three dimensions, and discuss simplified models for which rigorous results are available.